In this course participants will explore the impact of sexual crimes on victims, witnesses, families and the community as a whole. Participants will value and grasp the complexities of this crime, consider myths and social attitudes surrounding sexual crimes, and reflect on statistical information from Police Scotland and Scottish Crime and Justice Surveys.

Participants will review the types of charges for sexual crime, follow the journey of the victim from crime reporting, medical and forensic examination, through the different stages of the legal process. Participants will consider the key challenges sexual crime victims and witnesses face in the criminal justice system.
